Subject: Microsoft Settlement

It is time to settle! The lawsuit was brought up by the competitors of Microsoft. There is no harm to consumers. I, for one, love what has been integrated into Windows platform -- having to install daily use software and configure it correct is simply too painful. Integration is the right thing to do. The competitors want Microsoft die. They don't really think about consumers otherwise they would have been more competent on bring out high quality products. All companies should focus more on innovations and engineering excellences. The information industry needs to leave this behind and have the case settled.
